5 REASONS

Michelle Lujan Grisham knows that children who have access to high-quality early childhood education outpace their peers who don't have the same opportunities. She also understands that increased investments in Pre-K can help solve many of the problems currently facing New Mexico.

Studies show high-quality early education programs can lead to:

1. Higher math and science test scores
2. Higher literacy rates
3. Higher graduation rates
4. Lower dropout rates
5. Lower crime rates

With New Mexico schools ranked 49th in the nation and our pre-school enrollment at 44th, Michelle Lujan Grisham knows that investing in high-quality early childhood education is the change our state needs. That's why she has a plan to make universal access to Pre-K a reality for every New Mexico family.¹
